

Day of Legends

Scenes from the retirement of Duane Klueh's No. 54 and Larry Bird's No. 33 basketball jerseys in Hulman Center

33 back in Hulman Center: Indiana State sophomore Dustin Koetter, 20, of Floyd's Knobs, wears his vintage Larry Bird Indiana State jersey to the ceremony Saturday in Hulman Center.

Serious hangtime: Attendees of Larry Bird and Duane Klueh's jersey retirement ceremony turn to face the unveiling of the jerseys Saturday at the end of the ceremony in Hulman Center.

Photos by Joseph C. Garza
Tribune-Star

Ready to play: Indiana State assistant coach Rick Ray (right) gets pumped up with guard David Moss in the hallway outside of the lockerroom before the Sycamores' game against Northern Iowa.

I agree: Duane Klueh nods his head as he agrees with Larry Bird about John Wooden being the greatest basketball coach ever Saturday during a news conference in Hulman Center.

Good to see you: Butch Wade (center), a member of Duane Klueh's 1967 men's basketball team, greets Klueh's wife, Mary Alice, at the end of Duane's jersey retirement ceremony Saturday in Hulman Center. Wade is ISU's fourth all-time leading scorer with 1,672 points.

33
54
BIRD • KLUEH
JERSEY RETIREMENT
FEB. 28, 2004

Thanks: Indiana State senior Wilfred Antoine thanks his parents for all their support after the Sycamores' game against Northern Iowa as part of the Senior Day ceremony